

Emmanuelle SALES

Mr Sales has undertaken most of his career in third party asset management. After a period as a teaching and research fellow at the Faculty of Caen, he entered the bank Paribas in 1989 working in a managerial post. In the 1990's he helped towards the bank's development in the sector of asset management, holding various positions of responsibility within the asset management department for major private and institutional investors. This experience led to the creation of "La Française de Placements" in 2000 of which he is was one of the associate-founders. In 2005, together with his associate and the help of institutional investors, he founded the "Financière de la Cité", a company specialised in long term management and consultancy for major investors, of which he is the General Manager.

Emmanuel Sales was born on 23rd December 1961 in Paris. He is an alumni of the Ecole Normale Supérieure (ULM) and is a lecturer in philosophy. He publishes a quarterly Lettre d'Investissement which targets a professional public and he writes regularly for the national press.
